

SOPHOS

Sophos Inc. is one of the world's largest specialist developers of anti-virus and anti-spam software. With its products sold and supported in more than 150 countries, the company designs solutions specifically to protect businesses and organizations, including large corporations, universities, and governments, from viruses and spam. The company's high-security research labs are located in the U.S., Australia, Canada, and the UK, providing 24/7 analysis of emerging virus and spam threats.

Sophos PureMessage is the number one email filtering product for higher education institutions, with 90% of those deployments running on Solaris sparc or Linux. Deployed in the email gateway, PureMessage provides a central point of control including the flexibility to set institutional email policy according to each constituency: students, faculty, administration and staff, and alumni.

For your local Sophos sales contact information, please go to <http://www.sophos.com>. For general product and worldwide relationship inquiries, please contact Shawn Thomas, Director of Market Development, at shawn.thomas@sophos.com or +1 (604)484-6424.